

Self-evaluation Guide

This level guide can help you choose a course at the right level.

If you are not sure of your level, or want any advice, please contact us for assistance.

A1 Elementary

Listening: understand basic words and phrases in familiar concrete situations

Reading: understand basic factual information in notices and short messages

Speaking: give basic personal and work-related information

Writing: fill in simple registration forms and write short basic messages

A2 Foundation

Listening: follow simple predictable statements and descriptions

Reading: read simple e-mails on familiar topics

Speaking: take part in simple predictable conversations

Writing: write simple texts on familiar topics following a standard model

B1 Intermediate

Listening: understand routine language in everyday contexts

Reading: understand routine information in e-mails and articles

Speaking: speak about routine matters socially and at work

Writing: create routine reports and correspondence

B2 Operational

Listening: understand a variety of instructions and discussions

Reading: understand most reports and non-routine correspondence

Speaking: give clear explanations and interact in extended conversations

Writing: write summaries, reports and correspondence on a variety of topics

C1 Advanced

Listening: understand complex presentations and talks

Reading: understand most reports and correspondence even on unfamiliar topics

Speaking: deliver talks and take part in complex discussions and meetings

Writing: write complex reports, proposals and correspondence on a wide range of topics

C2 Proficiency

Listening: understand complex and specialised presentations and talks

Reading: understand even the most specialised correspondence and documents

Speaking: make persuasive and effective contributions to meetings and discussions

Writing: write complex and specialised reports, specifications and correspondence

