

Training Programmes for Local, non-native English teachers

Developing Local English Education

English language skills development is a proven and popular way to get to support local communities.

Our teacher trainer courses for non-native English language teachers, are an affordable and accessible solution deliverable anywhere in the world.

As most teachers in local communities globally are female, these initiatives directly support gender equality.

Who we work with

- 1. Education Departments - we work directly with local education departments or ministries to train their English teachers
- 2. CSR Project for Private Entities - we facilitate CSR projects within the local communities where private entities operate - supporting education development outreach programmes

- Our teacher training programmes will:
- increase English levels
 - improve teaching skills and techniques
 - produce long-term, sustainable results
 - align with national educational targets
 - create online communities of practice

OUR TRAINING PACKAGE INCLUDES:

TEACHER-LED TRAINING COURSE

Live online workshops focusing on the teaching skills and techniques needed for communicative student-centred learning.

E-LEARNING PACKAGE

Self-study modules providing the classroom language and knowledge needed by teachers to teach in English.

BENCHMARKING TEST

The online Test of English Language Teachers (TELT) benchmarks English levels to national targets.

COMMUNITIES OF PRACTICE

Sustainable online COPs providing long-term, professional support amongst local English teachers.
